The export of the Pacific coast salmon in cold storage is really in an experimental stage as yet. It is only within the past few years that the cold storage plants have been able to ship successfully to castern points, but the sale of salmon on the Atlantic coast is now a common enterprise.

Cold storage houses are competing with the canneries, and, where the demand justiles it, the cold storage people have outbid the canners. So long as the supply runs low the cold storage people have outbid the canners. Monday night Mr. Geo. D. Dalton was placed on a cot and taken to the office of Dr. Blakey where his physicians applied the x-ray. This was done in order to satisfy themselves that the dislocated and fractured limb had been properly set and bandaged, and Mr. Dalton, who has unifered greatly since his mishap, was only too glad to learn that his physicians had made a perfect success of their first treatment. There is no doubt but that Mr. Dalton will walk with a stiff limb the remainder of his life from the dislocation of his knee.

Princeton forfeited the game to Vincennes Sunday. With the score standing 5 to 3 in favor of Vincennes, the Infants set up a kick over a decision of Umpire Bush and refused to play. Later they went to the field, but farcical playing was indulged in under the protest of the umpire, until Bush stopped the comedy and gave the game to Vincennes 9 to 0.

Chief Engineer John F. It was no less than the finding of the sources of the Chagres river and of a means of diverting that stream to the Pacific ocean, thereby effecting a saving of $20,000,000, which may be devoted to excavating a sea level waterway.

Mr. Wallace has well stated that the far reaching importance of the discovery made by this party, for to control the Chagres is to build the canal. The enormous freshets of this river were difficulties with which De Lesseps' engineers were unable to cope successfully, but this work was done in a few months, by the engineering corps.

at Cornell university, he was graduated in civil enginering with a high standing.

After about three years spent in railroad construction in Texas, Indian territory, New Macico and Colorado he went with Chief Engineer Menoral to Nicaragua and remained there until 1833, returning in 1897 with the Walker commission to take charge of the Darien survey.

Mr. Ehle was employed on important work on the Eric canal for a short time, and also at Detroit in connection with the exceeding problems now under consideration by certain railroads. But when he received a summons to Panama, although it meant painful absence from his wife and two little boys at his new Yonkers (N. Y.) home, he did not hesitate.

Director of Gymnastics Declares That Women Wear Skirts to Hide Their Defects.

Dr. E. H. Arnold, director of the New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics, asserted at the ses-sion of the National Physical Ed-ucation association that women are compelled to wear skirts in or-der to hide their natural ungain-liness. Dr. Arnold even went so far as to say that "women have a poorer, anytomical development far as to say that "women have a poorer anatomical development than men, and that the angles of their knees are especially ugly." Women have worn skirts even since the earliest times. The most ancient papyri picture them in this garb. Every sculptor from the days of Phidias has chosen the female figure as an example of personal perfection. Every artist who ever tonched brush to can was has painted the femiliate form vas has painted the feminine form as the ideal in human fiesh. Every one knows that Venus and Aphrodite and the lithelimbed Diana will live in the world's memory forever. In modern days the beauty of the female form divine is emphasized whenever possible. Instead of swathing a woman in a miscellaneous bundle, fashion decrees that she shall wear a clinging skirt, a tightf-ditting bodiley, a corset which adapts itself to every graceful outline. Upon the stage the value of the feminine figure as an attraction to the eye is daily or nightly demonstrated. A chorus girl in skirts? Never, The idea is preposterous. vas has painted the feminine forn as the ideal in human flesh

On the other hand, imagine a company of men upon a stage arrayed in tights. The scene would arouse the risibilities of the most phlegmatic audience Such an array of spindle shanks such a conglomeration of knuckle knees, such a mass of pedal ex tremities as we would see.
